CCM and ESU Collaborate on Faculty Art and Design Exhibition Testing the Boundaries of Contemporary Works

Gain new insight into the stretching of boundaries in contemporary art and design as demonstrated by faculty from both CCM and East Stroudsburg University (ESU) at the first Spring Semester show at CCM's Art Gallery.

The East Stroudsburg University & County College of Morris Collaborative Faculty Exhibition now on display runs through Thursday, February 23. A reception, free and open to the public takes place Thursday, February 2, from 6 to 8 p.m.

The exhibition features work from faculty members in the Art & Design department at CCM and the Art+Media+Design department at ESU.

"This is truly a collaborative effort between two preeminent schools of art and design in the Northern New Jersey/Eastern Pennsylvania region," says Brian Sahotsky, professor of Visual Arts and gallery director. "The aim of this exhibition is to showcase the quality work of each school's faculty and to cultivate a reciprocal relationship between like-minded institutions. The creativity and uniqueness of the work is a testament to a pair of interdisciplinary faculties interested in testing the boundaries of contemporary art and design."

The exhibition showcases the works from inter-related disciplines and includes traditional wall-hung pieces, gaming displays, photographic installations, jewelry design, industrial design, virtual reality mock-ups, audio/performance pieces, 3D printed sculpture, graphic design logo boards, costume design and several multimedia pieces.

"It is a truly special occasion when professional educators can come together to produce such an interesting and varied showcase of art and design," notes Sahotsky.

Director of Accessibility Services and Jan Caffie, Dean of Student Success, and other offices across campus to provide students with personalized support. Included among the students it has assisted is a photography major who was encouraged to step out of his comfort zone and became involved with the Photography Club and increased the amount of time he spent socializing with other students, and a returning student it supported in pursuing his passion for art and animation who launched his own YouTube channel.

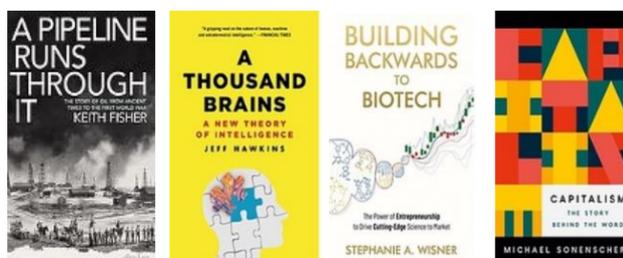

Located in the LRC, the staff consists of two full-time coordinators, two part-time support specialists and a team of student employees known as peer mentors. Peer mentors are central to the mission of College Steps. Student mentors assist participant students with organization, accessing college resources and academic guidance. In addition, they support College Steps' students with navigating the college's social network and developing the skills necessary to live independently. Through the Peer Mentorship program, College Steps is also committed to training the next generation of helping professionals. Program Coordinator Zach Pavone works closely with students and the campus community to ensure that students are supported by mentors in accessing resources on campus. Students and mentors are also supported by Instructional Coordinator Marybeth Burttt who oversees employment, training and support of mentors. Should you know of any students you believe would be good in that role, please contact Instructional Coordinator Marybeth Burttt at marybeth@collegesteps.org.

In partnership with CCM's faculty and staff, College Steps has supported students with completing requirements for various degrees and certifications including associate degrees in Information Systems and certificates in Culinary Arts and Landscaping and Horticultural Technology.
