Interesting Websites

What a gorgeous catalog! Breathtaking to look at. You're able to scroll through the magazine, page by page, and zoom in on pages to see the details of the photographs of the arts and antiques. Just marvelous. Take a look at Bonhams Magazine and see for yourself. <http://www.bonhams.com/cgi-bin/public.sh/pubweb/publicSite.r?screen=magazinecontents>

Visitors unfamiliar with Bonhams Magazine can get an excellent overview of its origins, in the "About Bonhams" link at the bottom of the homepage. Bonhams "is the world's oldest and largest auctioneer of fine art and antiques still in British ownership." The archive of Bonhams Magazine available on this website goes back to the winter issue of 2007. Art historians, historians, and archaeologists will find fascinating articles in the aforementioned issue on craftsman Matthew Boulton, the mystery of the Brontë children, centuries-old dog collars, and the curse of Tutankhamun.

Visitors will appreciate the photographs of the artworks and antiques, as they are very vivid and show great detail. The winter 2009 issue will delight Dr. Who fans, with its article entitled "Who's in Town". In the article entitled "Femme Fatale", Ian Irvine analyzes the role women played in the life of painter Willem de Kooning, by looking at a series of his figurative paintings.
