Interesting Websites

Happy Birthday Pac-Man! 30 years ago, most video games were basically shoot-em-ups or focused on some type of sports contest. All of that changed dramatically with the introduction of a yellow pie-shaped character that moved around a screen consuming tiny dots. Quite literally, Pac-Man was a game-changer, and this little guy found his way into popular culture quickly. He even climbed up the pop-music charts in the winter of 1982 as the subject of the song "Pac-Man Fever." Since its introduction in 1980, more than 10 billion games of Pac-Man have been played from Tokyo to Tangier. The game remains quite popular, despite the increasingly crowded video-game market, which now includes games designed specifically for mobile phones and other devices.

Interestingly, the game was also fashioned to appeal to women, a group that had been largely ignored by video game designers up to that point. In a recent interview, Pac-Man creator Toru Iwatani, commented on the inspiration for the game, remarking, "Pac-Man is inspired by all the manga and animation that I'd watch as a kid. The ghosts were inspired by Casper, or Obake no Q-Taro. The game idea – eating a power cookie and powering up to defeat the ghost – was inspired by Popeye eating spinach and defeating Bluto, turning the tables on him."

Comp Time Payout

AAPF FY 09/10

In accordance with the AAPF Contract, Article XVIII, page 53, AAPF employees are to be paid for any unused compensatory time in excess of 35 hours accumulated as of June 30.

Compensatory time that is not designated for carryover on June 30, or authorized to be used during July and August, will be paid out on or before August 31 at the employee's straight-time rate of the previous June 30.

Note: The employee may use this compensatory time in July or August only with written supervisory approval.

Supervisors need to complete and return the attached AAPF form to Human Resources no later than June 30, 2010. (Multiple names should be included on one form.)

CCMSA FY 09/10

CCMSA employees earning compensatory time are entitled to a lump sum payment for unused time accumulated during the fiscal year. This is in accordance with the CCMSA contract, Article VI, pages 18 & 19.

Employees may request to carry over accumulated compensatory time of up to 35 hours beyond the mandatory pay-off date of June 30. Employees with 10 years of continual service may make a request to carry over additional comp time beyond the mandatory June 30 payoff date. These employees must make a written request to their supervisor specifying when the compensatory leave will be taken during July and August. An approved copy of the leave schedule is to be forwarded to the Human Resources Department by the department's supervisor.

Supervisors must complete the attached CCMSA form and return it to Human Resources no later than June 30, 2010. (Multiple names should be included on one form.)
