County College of Morris Launches Online Tour

Prospective Students and Parents Offered an Insider's View of CCM

Prospective students and parents interested in learning more about County College of Morris (CCM) and all it has to offer can now take an online tour of the college on the CCM website.

The recently launched Online Tour features several CCM students talking about professors, student life programs, their chosen majors and some recent graduates.

"There are a lot of great things about CCM that people are not aware of that are highlighted in this video," said Kathleen Brunet Eagan, director of communications, who oversaw production of the online tour.

The video was filmed by Grey Sky Films of Rockaway, formed by Mark Serao and Chris Vaglio, both CCM graduates. The two met at CCM and after continuing their education in film studies at William Paterson University started their full-service production company in 2001.

The online tour is the first in a series of videos that CCM is filming with Grey Sky to make it easier for people to learn more about the community college, the breadth of its academic programs, and the success of its students and graduates. ## CCM Students Gain Top Awards in Stickley Craftsman Farms Design Competition

Students Design a Café for the National Historic Landmark

County College of Morris (CCM) interior design students Ju Young Kim, of West Orange, recently was presented with the first place award and Piya Jain, of Parsippany, with the second place award in the college division of the Stickley Craftsman Farms Design Competition.

Selected through a competitive application process, participants were given six-hours to design a café, including a three-dimensional model, for the grounds of Craftsman Farms, a National Historic Landmark in Morris Plains. Prior to the challenge, students were given an introduction to Gustav Stickley and Arts and Crafts design, along with a tour of Craftsman Farms and the proposed café site, an abandoned garage building on the property.

The competition, which took place in April, was a partnership between the Stickley Museum at Craftsman Farms and the Robert Busch School of Design at Kean University. Students from 11 schools competed in two divisions: high school and college. The jury selected two winners in each division.

The Stickley Museum, completed in 1911, is the only home that was designed and built by Gustav Stickley for his own use.
