

Eman Rahmatullah

I'm Eman, a Fashion design student graduating with an AFA and venturing into the Business side of fashion. What drew me into the design was the impact it has always had on the world. Think about it, everything we own, wear, eat, see, use was designed. What kept me in design all these years is always being mesmerized by how each project starts with a flat, plain, 2d object and in time transforms into 3d images or products. It's especially bewildering with Fashion, because what was once a flat object is now a work of art you can wear and use to show the world different parts of yourself. It's been a wonderful experience and a huge blessing to have learned so many different disciplines from drawing, 3d design, fashion construction, CAD, even jewelry design, and now I look forward to learning and studying the business side of things.
